inSite, a San Diego-based community arts organization, and Althea Thauberger, a Vancouver-based artist, in collaboration with Lincoln Management and other military and local support organizations, are pleased to announce an exciting new community project:

The Murphy Canyon Choir will be comprised of 30+ military spouses. Under the musical guidance of choir director and educator Terry Russell, the group will meet weekly starting in mid April. Initial rehearsals will focus on group vocal coaching and repertoire development. The project will culminate in October with an innovative local performance and recording, which will be part of inSite's 2005 programming.

The Murphy Canyon Choir is open to all military spouses in the area who are able to commit creative energy and two hours per week for a period of six months.

Spouses from diverse backgrounds are encouraged to get involved!

Babies too young for childcare are welcome to come to rehearsals with Mom!

Please help spread the word!

Established in 1992, inSite is a bi-national arts organization based in San Diego. Working in collaboration with public and private organizations, inSite sponsors international artists and directors to develop community-based projects in San Diego and Tijuana. From August through November of 2005, inSite will bring international attention to the region with an intense, three-month schedule of community projects, museum exhibitions, performances, and outreach programs.

Althea Thauberger is a Canadian artist who has been commissioned to produce a project for inSite's 2005 programming. She studied art at Concordia University in Montreal and the University of Victoria. Her collaborative film and performance projects often incorporate music and draw on popular culture and local histories. Althea has shown her work in galleries and public locations in North America and Europe. She is a visual art instructor at the Emily Carr Institute of Art in Vancouver.

Terry Russell studied Choral Conducting at the University of Miami and the University of Wisconsin. She has directed a broad range of classical and popular community choirs, performing in locations from Carnegie Hall in New York City to the deck of the Midway Carrier in San Diego Harbor.
